Hughes Named Assistant Director

Southeast Missouri native Chris Hughes accepts position at Paragould organization

Chris Hughes recently accepted the position of Assistant Director for the Center for Fathers and Families of Arkansas in Paragould. He will be focusing on fundraising for the organization.

Hughes began volunteering at CFF in the spring of 2006 when he became a “Boot Camp for New Dads” coach. This program offered by CFF provides “hands on” training for new/expecting dads. From there, Hughes continued volunteering at the Paragould organization. He is now the facilitator for a course at CFF called “Dave Ramsey’s Financial Peace University”. This course provides principles for achieving Financial Peace. Hughes is also involved in coordinating a special Father’s Day event to be held in June.

When asked what his vision is for CFF, Hughes said, “I see CFF growing out of Northeast Arkansas throughout the state helping fathers become responsible family leaders.” He continued to say, “This is going to be a huge task, and we will need continued help and support along the way.”

Hughes, a native of Van Buren, Mo., now resides in Paragould with his wife Rachel and their two-year-old son, Isaac. They are expecting another child in June.

The Center for Fathers and Families of Arkansas is a non-profit organization that offers numerous programs to help fathers meet the physical, emotional, and spiritual needs of their families.
